HALIFAX — A CAPITAL CHOICE

Nova Scotia Tourism and Culture

Dalhousie University (est.1818) is situated on 79 acres in the heart of the Atlantic Canadian port city of Halifax, Nova Scotia's provincial capital. Founded in 1749, Halifax is known for its beauty, maritime charm, friendliness, and quality of life. The metro area has a population of approximately 360,000, making it large enough to offer many of the services of a larger city — cultural activities, sporting events, public transportation, a vibrant downtown, major shopping centres, and an international airport — while maintaining the friendly qualities of a small town.

Getting to Halifax

By car, the most popular route is from the north and from the Halifax International Airport, along Route 102 (Bicentennial Drive), which brings you right into downtown Halifax via Bayers Road. If you're coming from the USA, you can reach Nova Scotia by driving through New Brunswick, or by sea using one of the ferry services connecting Maine with Yarmouth, Nova Scotia.

Distances to Halifax

Toronto	1864 km (1158 mi)
Montreal	1325 km (823 mi)
Boston	1116 km (693 mi)
New York	1470 km (913 mi)
Washington	1806 km (1122 mi)
